DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. In the instant case the recitation "the aseismatic device can decide a horizontal aseismatic value by adjusting quantities of the spring 70" on section [0023] of the specification has not been disclosed in such a way as to enable an ordinary skill in the art to duplicate the claimed invention.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, line 5, the phrase "wherein the spring decides a horizontal aseismatic value by adjusting quantities of the spring" is confusing as it is unclear how can the spring adjust quantities of the spring. Similar problem exists in claim 14, line 22.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

6. Claims 1 and 11-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e)(1) as being anticipated by Tsai (US 2003/0167707 A1).

Tsai discloses an aseismatic device comprising a spring pin having at least a spring (80) therein, and a positioning ball (33) fixed in a cavity of a platform by an elastic force of the spring, wherein the spring pin decides a horizontal aseismatic value by adjusting quantities of the spring since any applied horizontal force would have to overcome the spring force, and as long as a horizontal force that acts on the aseismatic device is greater than the horizontal aseismatic value, the positioning ball shifts away from the cavity for cushioning the horizontal force.

The cavity being cone-shaped with walls comprising first and second tilt angle in accordance with claims 11 and 12.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3617

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. Claims 2-6, 9 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tsai (US 2003/0167707 A1) in view of (Nishibe et al JP06234495A).

Tsai teaches all the limitations of claims 2-6, 9 and 13 except for an aseismatic device that is applied to an overhead hoist transport system. The general concept of applying an aseismatic device to an overhead hoist transport system is well known in the art as illustrated by Nishibe et al which disclose the teaching of an aseismatic device that is applied to an overhead hoist transport system, see the attached abstract. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Tsai to apply the use of an aseismatic device into an overhead hoist transport system in as taught by Nishibe et al in order to achieve a long life by improving earthquake resistance.

Allowable Subject Matter

9. Claims 7-8 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

10. Claims 14-19 would be allowable if rewritten or amended to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action.

Conclusion

11. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:

Art Unit: 3617

Takehi et al, Shustov, Toyoma and Medeot et al are cited to show closely related aseismatic device comprising resilient means.
